

Dear All

Two years ago I sought the assistance of NARPO branches offer employment in our fledgling security business. Since then we have grown, employed 7 ex officers, and seek your help again.

Myself (ex Cheshire/NCS/NCA) and Dennis Healey (ex Cheshire,GMP/NCS/CTU) have formed IntaGuard Security to offer venue protection, security guarding and covert surveillance.

We have secured contracts with three prestigious wedding venues near Manchester Airport, providing discreet security during events, additionally we have options on other venues and events.

A part of our attraction to clients is that we are predominantly ex police, we have found that our skills, professionalism and ability to communicate are preferred to a muscle bound man on the door!

The current contracts pay £16 per hour to operatives, the duties are regularly fun, happen between 7.00pm and 2.00am, and I've yet to roll round the floor with a drunk. The pay is well above industry standard and reflects the skills we seek.

Successful candidates will have the flexibility to work as often as they wish, we have opportunities every weekend and some weekdays, and be self-employed on a contractor basis.

As the wedding and events industry restarts we need more staff, we are looking for retired officers who can pass an SIA approved course (approx £230) over 6 days, and thereafter apply for and receive their SIA Door Supervisors badge (£190)

Our training partners at FGH Security conduct regular training courses in central Manchester, surprisingly good content and well presented, and even we passed. Other training companies are available.

We would be happy to chat to any interested colleagues, and would be particularly interested in any female applicants.

Hoping this is something you can disseminate to other NARPO branches?

Kind regards and many thanks
